Paris Styles

by ... MARY FENTRESS

PARIS (U.P.)—Dark woolen suits with bright plaid blouses for daytime and elaborate evening gowns with broad skirts and rich materials are outstanding in the winter collection of Chanel.

A bright pink and black combination is favored for evening wear with black fringe over pink taffeta, satin and net the materials chosen. A deep blue velvet evening gown of simple lines is trimmed with light blue chiffon forming a scarf about the neck and filmy apron effect which falls to the floor from the waistline in front.

Laings are a novelty feature of the collection shown on the long, fitted sleeves of a black dinner gown, and again on the bodice of an evening dress. Velvet and lace are combined in classic evening costumes, broadened lames, velvets and taffetas are other favored fabrics, and jet, sequin and rhinestone trim follows the luxury theme.

Chanel makes informal suits in soft woolsens with short, loose jackets. The suits themselves are in dark hues and are worn with bright striped or plaid wool blouses. Skirts are straight and hats frequently match the bright motif of the blouse.

Soft jersey cloth, designed with extreme simplicity usually in navy blue is favored in the Chanel collection. The frocks are youthful in line with straight skirts and high round or V neckline with sleeves of bracelet length.

Fur is lavishly used on dress coats with fox trim on collars, sleeves and as panels on the fronts of coat skirts.

TODAY'S FASHION TIP
Day and evening bodices accentuate the high bustline and svelte waist in Chanel's winter collection.

AUDUBON by Constance Rourke: The story of one of the most romantic characters America has produced will be a delight to readers of all ages. John James Audubon, artist, naturalist, woodsman, a strange handsome and vital person, from his earliest beginning shrouded in mystery (there is some evidence that he was the last Dan-ahno) to the end of his eventful life an atmosphere of romance surrounds him. He traveled from Labrador to Texas and his biographer following his trails throughout the country gathered much new material to write this fine, full-flavored biography.

I WOULD BE PRIVATE by Rose Macaulay: Quintuplets were born to the wife of McBrown of the London police force. Now there was only one thing Officer McBrown craved, privacy. How he did not get it even though he migrated to a deserted isle is told with delicious humor.

WE ARE NOT ALONE by James Hilton: Carries the same charm and simplicity of treatment which made "Good Bye, Mr. Chips" a universal favorite. The story of the "Little Doctor," dancer, Leon, is one that grips a reader. It has an epilogue which is bound to produce controversy.

ELEANOR OF AQUITAINE by Melich V. Rosenberg: The long life of Eleanor of Aquitaine made a deep impression on her century. She was married, first to a king of France, who divorced her, and then to a king of England. Mother of Richard the Lion Hearted, she played a "dominant role" in the awakening and spread of culture, but her days caused a war that continued intermittently for 300 years. The book is filled with colorful scenes and characters and interesting details of life in the 12th century. What the people ate and drank, what they wore, why and how they thought as they did, are all described.

TRAVELER HONORED AT LUNCHEON
In honor of Mrs. Abel Shriner of 2124 Arlington avenue, who left Friday night to visit her mother in Kansas City, Mrs. Esther Dennis entertained a group at a luncheon-bridge party in her home, 1621 Amalapa avenue. The luncheon tables bore tiny toy autos for favors (because Mrs. Shriner motored east) and the place cards were fashioned after dining-car menus.

The guests were met at the door by a white-coated "darker" who afterwards served the luncheon in true waiter style and started an electric train which was loaded with gifts for the honoree and ran into the room, stopping at Mrs. Shriner's place. The dusky attendant was Miss Eva McCormack. Prizes were won by Edith Scribner and Persia Fess and other guests were Sarah Murray, Hazel Foust, Mary Lewis, Estelle Graham, Billie Kerber and Sally West.

DESSERT BRIDGE PARTY FRIDAY
Mrs. Lucille Cheadle, 1020 Cravens avenue, will entertain at a dessert bridge party Friday afternoon for Meses. Ruth Ingold, Ann Gallucci, Ruth Fischer, Essie Strom, Agnes Babbitt, Evelyn Fernley and Esther Lowen.

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY WITH PARTY
The 13th birthday of Shirley McVicar, 2120 Gramercy avenue, furnished the incentive for a delightful party Tuesday evening, after a swim at Cabrillo Beach, a dinner was served in the McVicar home with covers placed for Misses Virginia Hall, Margaret Hogue, Mary Bray, Nada Mitchell, Phyllis McVicar, Winifred Smith, Irene Gilson and Shirley.
